

Das Erwachsenwerden: Coming of age through the ages

German 202, Spring 2016
MW 10:00 – 11:15; F 10:00 – 10:50

Prof. Hiram Maxim

hmaxim@emory.edu; (404) 727-6439

Modern Languages 214; Office hours MW 11:30 – 12:30 and by app't

Course Description

German 202 is the second half of the intermediate German language sequence that explores how young adults have come of age in different time periods in the German-speaking world. Following a thematically-based approach to language instruction, this course explores how different societal factors have affected German-speaking youth's coming of age and draws comparisons with comings of age in English language cultures. Specifically, the following sub-themes as they pertain to coming of age will be studied in German 202:

- Education (pursuing knowledge within confines of educational institutions)
- War (constructive and destructive aspects of war on one's maturation)
- Love (liberating or debilitating effects of love)

Through this focus on coming of age at different moments in German cultural history, students will build on the foundation established in first-year German and develop further their abilities as readers, writers, and speakers of German. Students will use theme-based readings and a grammar review textbook to acquire the language necessary to communicate meaningfully about the topic of coming of age. One of the criteria for choosing the sub-themes for 201-202 was to achieve some overlap with the topics discussed in 101-102. By revisiting some of the same themes, albeit from a different perspective and with a different focus, students should be able to find some familiar ground for developing their language abilities further. In addition, students will read a novel, Die Geschichte von Herrn Sommer, over the course of the entire semester that will provide students with the opportunity to examine how coming of age is portrayed in a longer text.

In terms of your long-term language development, German 202 is the second course of Level 2 in the Department of German Studies' integrated four-year, content-oriented undergraduate curriculum. As such, the course will focus on expanding your ability to tell personal stories. Specifically, your stories will span a longer time period, they will not only narrate, but also compare, contrast, and explain, and they will consist of more detailed and sophisticated information that becomes linguistically possible through your command of a wider array of lexico-grammatical features. The department has spent the past few years working collaboratively on revising the curriculum to support students' language development, and the faculty were delighted that the American Association of Teachers of German recognized these efforts in 2012 by designating the department as one of only two collegiate Centers of Excellence nationwide.

Prerequisite: Completion of three semesters of college-level German or placement via the German Studies Department's online placement exam (<http://german.emory.edu/placement/index.html>)

Course Materials:

- Rankin Jamie, & Larry Wells. Handbuch zur deutschen Grammatik, 6th edition. Heinle, 2015. ISBN: 978-1305078840. Also available as eBook at <http://coursesmart.com>
- Answer key to the grammar book available on Blackboard
- Süskind, Patrick. Die Geschichte von Herrn Sommer. Diogenes Verlag, 1994.
- Supplemental texts for each thematic unit available on Course Reserves, Blackboard, and/or to be distributed by your instructor

Approach:

As the title of the course indicates, “Das Erwachsenwerden,” there is a specific thematic focus that runs throughout the two-course sequence (201 & 202), namely, an exploration of how different societal factors affect young adults’ coming of age. By focusing on an overarching topic for an entire course, German 201-202 reflects the teaching philosophy of the Department of German Studies that language is best acquired when learners have to explore a particular content area and to communicate meaningfully about it. In this content-based approach, rather than studying the language as an end unto itself, you will focus on those language features that are necessary to discuss and explore the content in a meaningful way. This is not to say that we will not study the traditional building blocks of language, namely, grammar and vocabulary. In fact, you will probably see right away that much of what you do for the class resembles how you might imagine a typical foreign language course; that is, you will read texts, learn relevant vocabulary, study grammatical structures that appear in the texts, complete exercises for homework on the grammar and vocabulary, interact with classmates and the instructor on specific topics, and complete writing assignments. What all these activities have in common is that they aim to familiarize yourself with the language and the content that you will need to communicate meaningfully about the topic at hand.

Also in line with the general pedagogical approach in the German Studies Department, the primary medium for delivering the content and modeling targeted language features in this course will be texts. As such, significant class time will be spent working with texts, understanding how they work, and approaching them as helpful resources for your own language use. Specifically, at this level of language learning the main text type or genre that you will encounter will be the personal narrative or story. There are many types of narratives (e.g., fairy tales, historical narratives, adventure stories), and we will examine together what constitutes an effective narrative so that you can develop your ability to narrate about a range of topics. There will be sufficient support to help you in this process, but there is also the long-term goal of gradually developing your ability to become an independent reader, learner, and user of German.

Finally, we want to remind you that learning a language is a long-term, non-linear, and error-full process. In other words, you will make wonderful progress this year, but you should not get frustrated by the challenges that the language presents. You will make mistakes, and that is completely normal. In fact, your errors are what indicate to us where we need to focus more attention and how your abilities are developing. You also might find that some aspects of the language that you thought you understood or had a firm grasp on are now causing your trouble. That, too, is completely normal. There is only so much that your brain can handle at a given point, and it is typical that new material takes up cognitive resources that you had used earlier for some other component of the language.

As you embark on this exciting and challenging process, you will be expected to use German for all communication in class. It is hoped that you will approach our three weekly meetings as an opportunity to immerse yourself in German and push yourself as a learner of the language.

Assessment:

- 1. Participation (20%). Attendance and participation are essential to your progress. You will be allowed a maximum of 3 absences for routine doctor visits and travel for non-emergencies, etc., during the semester without penalty. Beginning with the 4th absence, a penalty of -1% will be levied on the earned final grade for each class missed. The best policy to adopt is to keep your instructor informed if you miss any classes or assignments. Extended illnesses and family emergencies will be treated as exceptions, and absences for these purposes will be excused. Be prepared to show proof of the need for the absences, however, if your instructor asks for it. Note that you can make up for one absence by participating in a fourth extra-curricular event of the department (guest-lectures, Mittagstische, German House parties, film etc.). Varsity athletes can get excused with coaches’ notification of announced absences but must, of course, do the required work.

Part of your participation grade is based on your attending at least three extra-curricular events (such as films, parties, guest lectures, etc.) each semester. There is a great amount of flexibility as to what counts as an appropriate activity because we want you to seek out those aspects of the German-speaking culture that interest you. For each event, please submit a brief summary of the event and your reactions to it to your instructor in as much German as possible (50-75 words). To avoid waiting until the end of the semester to complete this course requirement, you are asked to attend one event during each instructional unit. The last day of classes is the deadline for submitting your reports on your extra-curricular activities.

Class Participation Criteria:

| Grade | Criteria |
|-------|--|
| A | always well-prepared always is attentive and eager to volunteer always tries to use German with classmates and instructor always makes the most of each exercise shows real resourcefulness and imagination when using the language always responds to and engages classmates in a respectful manner remains critical and open-minded toward target and native culture |
| B | usually well-prepared usually is attentive and volunteers occasionally usually tries to use German with classmates and instructor usually makes the most of each exercise completes exercises with some imagination and resourcefulness makes some effort to engage fellow students shows some development of cultural sensitivity |
| C | adequately prepared and attentive occasionally needs to be reminded to use German with instructor and classmates responds and completes exercises with minimal imagination does not engage classmates beyond the minimum requirements for an assignment |
| D | usually unprepared makes little effort to participate or complete exercises rarely tries to use German with instructor or classmates |
| F | makes no contribution to class whatsoever |

2. Preparation (25%). Completing homework thoroughly, regularly, and on time is extremely important. Learning a foreign language is long-term process, and cramming simply does not work. For each grammar exercise students need to check their answers against the answer key and correct any mistakes with a different colored pencil or pen. All Arbeitsblätter (AB) must be completed and brought to class. Those Arbeitsblätter that are collected will be graded according to the following criteria:

- “√+” (100%): Homework handed in on time and indicating a very thorough effort, including a conscious attempt to use language features emphasized in class;
- “√” (80%): Homework handed in on time and indicating a satisfactory effort;
- “√-” (60%): Homework handed in on time but indicating an unsatisfactory effort.

Note: Homework that receives a check or check minus can be corrected, turned back in, and, assuming the issues have been addressed, receive a mark of 90%. Late homework will not be accepted and will receive no credit. Students are encouraged to use the homework exercises to experiment with the language and become resourceful users of German. At the same time, they are expected to use online resources to check their work for any unnecessary errors. Specifically, committing five or more gender (G), case after preposition (K), plural form (P), spelling (R), or subject-verb agreement (SV) errors on an assignment will negatively affect the final grade (GKPRS!). Both Microsoft Word and Google Docs have a built-in spellcheck to catch any spelling mistakes, and there are several online dictionaries for checking the gender (and spelling) of German nouns.

3. Writing assignments (30%). At the end of each of the three units you will complete a writing assignment on a topic relevant to the unit. Submit your writing as a hard copy to your instructor. The first draft will be annotated and returned for revision.
4. Speaking events (15%). There will be formally assessed speaking events based on the material covered in class at the end of the first two thematic units.
5. Final exam (10%) on Friday, April 29th, from 11:30am to 2:00pm. The time slot for this exam is determined by the registrar. Please plan your summer travel accordingly.

Overview of semester:

Education „Bildung“ (weeks 1-5):

- Amon: Mein Großvater hätte mich erschossen, Jennifer Teege
- „Jugend im Griensteidl,” Stefan Zweig
- Das weiße Band, Michael Haneke (Film)
- Die Geschichte von Herrn Sommer, Patrick Süskind

War “Krieg” (weeks 6-10):

- Auszug aus weiter leben, Ruth Klüger
- Deutschland im Jahre Null, Roberto Rossellini (Film)
- „Die Küchenuhr,” Wolfgang Borchert
- Die Geschichte von Herrn Sommer, Patrick Süskind

Love „Liebe“ (weeks 11-14):

- „Ein Jüngling liebt ein Mädchen,” Heinrich Heine
- „Irgendwie hat sich der Junge verändert,” Willi Fährmann
- Das Versprechen, Margarethe von Trotta (Film)
- Die Geschichte von Herrn Sommer, Patrick Süskind

Office for Undergraduate Education

- The Office for Undergraduate Education (OUE) central office is located in White Hall 300
- Please visit or call 404.727.6069 with questions about academic affairs, concerns or policies.
- All Emory College of Arts and Sciences policies may be found in the College Catalog: <http://catalog.college.emory.edu/>

Important Spring 2016 Dates

- January 12: First day of classes
- January 18: MLK Holiday (no classes)
- January 19: Add/Drop/Swap ends 11:59pm
- January 28: Last day to change S/U or Grading option
- March 4: Last day for partial withdrawal without penalty (all students)
- March 7-11: Spring Break (no classes)
- April 1: Last day for one-time partial withdrawal without penalty (1st year, Transfer, Oxford ONLY)
- April 25: Last day of classes
- April 26, 27: Reading Days
- April 28-May 4: Final Exam Period

Academic Advising and Class Deans

Students who have any academic concern or question about Emory College of Arts and Sciences policies should first meet with an OUE academic advisor. If an academic advisor is unavailable, students may meet with an OUE dean during open hours.

- OUE Academic Advisor appointments: www.emory.edu/asst
- Deans' Open Hours: <http://college.emory.edu/oue/about-us/deans-open-hours.html>

Academic Support

There is a range of resources available to Emory undergraduates designed to enrich each student's educational experience.

- Visit <http://college.emory.edu/oue/student-support/index.html> for a list of support programs and appointment directions.

Access and Disability Resources

Access, Disability Services and Resources (ADSR) works with students who have disabilities to provide reasonable accommodations. In order to receive consideration for reasonable accommodations, you must contact ADSR. It is the responsibility of the student to register with ADSR. Please note that accommodations are not retroactive and that disability accommodations are not provided until an accommodation letter has been processed. Students registered with ADSR who have a letter outlining their academic accommodations, are strongly encouraged to coordinate a meeting time with your professor that will be best for both to discuss a protocol to implement the accommodations as needed throughout the semester. This meeting should occur as early in the semester as possible. Contact Access, Disability Services and Resources for more information at (404) 727-9877 or adsrstudent@emory.edu. Additional information is available at the ADSR website at <http://equityandinclusion.emory.edu/access/students/index.html>.

Attendance Policies (Absences and Absences from Examinations)

- Absences: Although students incur no administrative penalties for a reasonable number of absences from class or laboratory, they should understand that they are responsible for the academic consequences of absence and that instructors may set specific policies about absence for individual courses.
- Absences from Examinations: A student who fails to take any required midterm or final examination at the scheduled time may not make up the examination without written permission from a dean in the Office for Undergraduate Education. Permission will be granted only for illness or other compelling reasons, such as participation in scheduled events off-campus as an official representative of the University. A student who takes any part of a final examination ordinarily will not be allowed to defer or retake that final. Deferred examinations must be taken during the student's next semester of residence by the last date for deferred examinations in the academic calendar or within twelve months if the student does not re-enroll in the college. Failure to take a deferred examination by the appropriate deadline will result automatically in the grade IF or IU.

Honor Code

The Honor Code of Emory College is in effect throughout the semester. By taking this course, you affirm that it is a violation of the code to cheat on quizzes and exams, to plagiarize, to deviate from the instructor's instructions about collaboration on work that is submitted for grades, to give false information to a faculty member, and to undertake any other form of academic misconduct. You agree that the instructor is entitled to move you to another seat during examinations, without explanation. You also affirm that if you witness others violating the code you have a duty to report them to the honor council.

The central issue is that any work submitted to an instructor for evaluation should be one's own. Within the German Studies Department assistance is possible and even encouraged in two limited situations: online or in person. Online resources can be used for grammatical explanations (e.g., verb conjugations) or the translation of words, expressions, and phrases. However, use of online resources to translate entire sentences or paragraphs is not permitted. Seeking assistance in person should be limited to receiving suggestions, reviewing certain topics, and addressing revisions, but the ultimate production of the work to be turned in will rest with you.

The Honor Code, a list of offenses and the Honor Council process may be found in the College Catalog, <http://catalog.college.emory.edu/academic/policies-regulations/honor-code.html>

Upon every individual who is a part of Emory University falls the responsibility for maintaining in the life of Emory a standard of unimpeachable honor in all academic work.the Honor Code of Emory College is based on the fundamental assumption that every loyal person of the University not only will conduct his or her own life according to the dictates of the highest honor, but will also refuse to tolerate in others action which would sully the good name of the institution. Preamble, Honor Code

Academic misconduct is an offense generally defined as any action or inaction which is offensive to the integrity and honesty of the members of the academic community.